a continuation of macneill's lectures in which he examines the surprising and sometimes unsettling answers to the most basic of human questions why do we do what we do macneill examines the biological component of why people do the things they do from charles darwin's and gregor mendel's dangerous ideas to contemporary thought leaders and the forming of the modern synthesis of this vital field of study this edited volume offers an incisive exploration of the intersection between islam and evolutionary theory a topic that remains a focal point of vigorous academic debate and inquiry covering a broad spectrum of approaches this work delves into contemporary scholarship islamic intellectual history and scriptural interpretations ensuring a rich multifaceted discussion it notably amplifies underrepresented perspectives including shī'ī viewpoints and contributions from female scholars while broadening the conversation beyond traditional arab centric narratives to incorporate insights from regions such as indonesia iran and france structured into sections that scrutinize scriptures individual scholars and societal views the book meticulously examines the complex relationships between islamic thought and evolutionary science an indispensable resource for scholars at the nexus of science and religion and for specialists in islamic studies this volume ignites fresh insights and promotes a more inclusive academic dialogue indigenous ways of understanding and interacting with the natural world are characterized as traditional ecological knowledge tek which derives from emphasizing relationships and connections among species this book examines tek and its strengths in relation to western ecological knowledge and evolutionary philosophy pierotti takes a look at the scientific basis of this approach focusing on different concepts of communities and connections among living entities the importance of understanding the meaning of relatedness in both spiritual and biological creation and a careful comparison with evolutionary ecology the text examines the themes and principles informing this knowledge and offers a look at the complexities of conducting research from an indigenous perspective with good intentions examines the joint efforts of aboriginal people and individuals of european ancestry to counter injustice in canada when colonization was at its height from the mid nineteenth to the early twentieth century these people recognized colonial wrongs and worked together in a variety of ways to right them but they could not stem the tide of european based exploitation the book is neither an apologist text nor an attempt to argue that some colonizers were simply well intentioned almost all those considered here teachers lawyers missionaries activists had as their overall goal the christianization and civilization of canada s first peoples while their sensitivity and willingness to work in concert with aboriginal people made them stand out from their less sympathetic compatriots they were nonetheless implicated in the colonialist project as the contributors to this volume make clear by discussing examples of euro canadians who worked with aboriginal peoples with good intentions brings to light some of the lesser known complexities of colonization this volume is an important resource for anyone interested in canadian history particularly post confederation history and in native studies and issues of colonization of native peoples from eve to evolution provides the first full length study of american women s responses to evolutionary theory and illuminates the role science played in the nineteenth century women s rights movement kimberly a hamlin reveals how a number of nineteenth century women raised on the idea that eve s sin forever fixed women s subordinate status embraced darwinian evolution especially sexual selection theory as explained in the descent of man as an alternative to the creation story in genesis hamlin chronicles the lives and writings of the women who combined their enthusiasm for evolutionary science with their commitment to women s rights including antoinette brown blackwell eliza burt gamble helen hamilton gardener charlotte perkins gilman and elizabeth cady stanton these darwinian feminists believed evolutionary science proved that women were not inferior to men that it was natural for mothers to work outside the home and that women should control reproduction the practical applications of this evolutionary feminism came to fruition hamlin shows in the early thinking and writing of the american birth control pioneer margaret sanger much scholarship has been dedicated to analyzing what darwin and other male evolutionists had to say about women but very little has been written regarding what women themselves had to say about evolution from eve to evolution adds much needed female voices to the vast literature on darwin in america pharisaic judaism discussed in part 1 of this study was an inseparable element in the political history of the second hebrew commonwealth with the destruction of the second temple in jerusalem along with the skeleton of what was once a jewish state judaism entered a period of crisis far more severe than experienced with the destruction of the first temple along with the first hebrew commonwealth pharisaic judaism integral to the now nonexistent jewish state of necessity gave way to rabbinic judaism which as a minority religious culture took root primarily in the enclaves of jews strewn throughout the diaspora with little or mostly no control over their very existence and in the absence of a centralized religious authority such as the sanhedrin in the temple complex jewish communities throughout the diaspora developed different religious customs traditions and in some instances belief systems all nominally based on the core teachings of scripture part 2 of this study of the evolution of judaism from ezra to the present day will attempt to trace significant developments along that evolutionary path from the transition from pharisaic to rabbinic judaism that is judaism as understood by the different schools of rabbis as decisors scholars and teachers over the past two millennia this study of the evolutionary process of ancient civilisations stresses the complementarity between theoretical principles and the relevant historical and archaeological evidence taking its approach from world systems theory it focuses on the origin development and collapse of the first near eastern stage of the central civilisation
